course OBJECTIVE

HR management is a specialisation, and many practitioners in Malta have the qualities to be competent HR managers but lack the knowledge and skills that enable them to function as HR professionals. In addition, many companies, mostly micro and small enterprises, may not have the scale to employ a full-time HR person, and will opt to train an existing member of staff to become knowledgeable about the importance and application of HR within his/her organisation. In many instances, people are thrown into an HR position, or asked to assume HR related responsibilities, without adequate preparation, in the belief that 'anyone can do it'. There is increasing awareness that this is not the case, and this course will address a critical gap that many companies currently face and is the main reason why this course is being offered.

For this reason, the overall course objectives are:

- ➔ To acquire knowledge on the role of HR practitioners
- ➔ To learn about the necessary skills needed by an HR practitioner
- ➔ To disseminate information on best practices used in the HR field
- ➔ To raise awareness on topics that HR practitioners should be taking into consideration in their day-to-day activities
- ➔ To discuss national and EU policies affecting HRM practice

target AUDIENCE

Managers, HR trainees, personnel taking HR duties, students interested in HR, etc.

entry REQUIREMENTS

At least a level 4 qualification in management or a related discipline, and/or a minimum of 2 years' experience in general or HR management.

learning METHODOLOGY

The course will consist of presentations, question-and-answer sessions and discussions.
